Meet Kekhasha. Daughter of a wastepicker. She's celebrating topping her school in Nizamuddin basti in South Delhi, with 87.75% in her 12th grade board exams. For many students, this is one of the hardest exams of their lives. For someone like Kekhasha, it is one of the many exams of life she has had to sail through. Chintan has been working with Le Passage to India Foundation's Shaping Lives Initiative to help Kekhasha and many other wastepickers' children get an education instead of spending their childhoods recycling waste. What next for her? A Bachelor's degree from Delhi University in Political Science or Hindi, she says.

Cheers to that and again, thank you to all of you who support Chintan to get this work in place. We are all so bursting with pride for this young woman.
